Allied Trap Snaps

Pioneer Jaws Close
On Red Forces

U.S. EIGHTH ARMY
HEADQUARTERS, Korea,
Oct. 17 (Wednesday) (AP).—
United States troops today caught Chinese forces in a giant trap on the blinding central Korean front, where three Allied divisions have smashed within four miles of the big Red base of Kumsong.
"We put the cork in the bottle," an Allied officer said.

The Americans snapped shut their trap less than 24 hours after U.S. airmen handed the Communist air force its worst jet licking of the war.

The Fifth Air Force said 175 fliers shot down nine Russian-type MiGs and damaged five others in two dogfights over northwest Korea. It reported only one F-86 Sabre jet damaged in battles between 70 U.S. and more than 150 Red jets.

Allied officers estimated that nearly 800 Reds were caught in the trap south of Kumsong.

The bulk of them were dug in on Fortress Mountain, the highest point in the area. But their escape was cut off by Allied machine gunners and artillery.

United Nations troops, who yesterday seized two peaks to the east and two more heights west of Fortress, snapped shut their cordon of steel Wednesday morning. They fought completely around to the north and joined forces.

A briefing officer estimated total Chinese casualties in four days on this section at nearly 4,500.

Progress Made Toward Talks

MUNSAN, Oct. 17 (AP).—Gen.
Matthew B. Ridgway announced considerable progress was made by Communist and Allied negotiators today toward resumption of Korean armistice talks.

The announcement about the seventh meeting of Allied and Red liaison officers in Pnummum jim, Korea, was released by Ridgway's public information office at Tokyo.

It cautioned, however, that there were some unresolved issues which must be settled before full-scale meetings can begin.

Princess Congratulates Winnipeg Ballet Troupe

WINNIPEG, Oct. 16 (CP).—
Surprise was expressed by Princess Elizabeth tonight after viewing the command performance of the Winnipeg Ballet Company.

The Princess personally congratulated Gwenneth Lloyd, founder and director of the ballet, for the fine performance staged by her troupe of dancers.

She said she was surprised that such a fine group of dancers existed in Canada. The Duke

Prince Philip traveled in the cab of the engine of the Royal Train from Niagara Falls for Hamilton. He took over the throttle for a short time during the run.

Price-Fixing Law Due, Says Garson

OTTAWA, Oct. 16 (CP).— Justice Minister Garson said today that he is planning to introduce legislation against retail price-fixing "without delay" and invited Canadians to write to him if they find sellers breaking the law.

"If you or your friends believe that prices are being held up by practices which seem to be contrary to the combines law," he said, "do not hesitate to write to the combines investigation commissioner at Ottawa . . . If in this connection, you think I can be of any help, by all means write to me."

Mr. Garson spoke on a C.B.C.
free-time political broadcast.
No details of the planned legislation have yet been disclosed but Mr. Garson dropped a hint that it of probable pattern when he noted that the MacQuarrie Combines Committee has made a recommendation on maximum resale prices.

"If this recommendation is adopted," he said, "the whole saler or retailer will be free to sell a product for less than the manufacturer's resale price but not for more."

Chief Justice Wendell B. Farris, regarding the necessity, told the jurymen Tuesday that he could not permit them to attend showing although he was anxious that they should be allowed as much entertainment as possible during the long waits between sessions.

"You are engaged on a serious matter," he said.

"Should you go to a show or anywhere where you might communicate with others your work might be undone and a new trial ordered. A man's life is involved and nothing must interfere."

His lordship referred to a recent Prince Rupert case, thrown out because jurors had gone to a movie.

Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip made their brief stage stop before leaving for a waiting train to Regina. Both said they'd like to come back to Winnipeg. (See also stories on Page 6.)

Miss Lloyd said she found the Princess to be quite shy. "I did most of the talking," she said.

The Royal couple attended the performance in Winnipeg's vast civic auditorium with Lt. Gov.
R. F. McWilliams and Mrs. Mc-Williams.

Before the lights dimmed on "Ballet Premier," the first of two short ballets viewed by the Princess and her consort, Princess Elizabeth was presented with a bouquet.

Smoked Salmon aux Capres?

French in Royal Menu Numb Newsman

By LAWRIE JOSLIN

It's a good thing they don't make official announcements in French at the Parliament Buildings or the boys in the press gallery would have to go back to school again to brush up.

Gobbledygook, which seems to be the native language of some politicians, the boys are getting used to, but French is another story.

Official publication yesterday of the menu for the provincial government luncheon to be tendered Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh on Monday brought consternation to the press gallery.

Someone called in Deputy Provincial Secretary R. A. Pennington for assistance. He advised that a call should be put through to the chef at the Empress Hotel.

This direction was followed. The chef volunteered to rush right over to the press gallery with a translation.

But time wore on close to deadlines and no help arrived.

STORY FORM

A Vancouver reporter suggested that the menu be run in story form as it appeared.

"Guess I don't have as many French-speaking readers as you," replied a worried Victoria man, expressing a wish that he had done his French homework in high school. "Besides, I have to meet my city editor every day.

Just at the flimsy straw-clutching point an Empress Hotel official telephoned the official translation.

It was quite simple all the time.
Salmon aux capres are small pieces of salmon. Noisettes of lamb, vert pre, are choice pieces of lamb charcoal-broiled with watercress. Pommes de terre lorette turns out to be potatoes mashed with chives and cream and egg yolks rolled in the form of shrimp and fried. Parfait aux frises is a confection made of strawberry ice cream and whipped cream. Flandises are cookies.

"Don't you think it's really less confusing in French?" asked the interpreter.

"Oui, oui," was the reply.

Britain Orders More Men Into Suez to Back Troops

Canada Looks To U.S. Lead

OTTAWA, Oct. 16 (CP).—
A concerned government got a large volume of information on the Egyptian crisis from London today, but tended to look to Washington for a strong lead that might best solve it.

The official anxiety here is rooted in a belief that this crisis does far more than endanger the vital Suez Canal area; unless there is a firm stand, it endangers the whole position of the western powers in the Middle East.

As for Canada herself, by coincidence two R.C.N. warships neatly symbolized her position during the day.

While British ships opened fire
on Egyptian rioters and looters
at one end of the Mediterranean, the aircraft carrier Magnificent and the destroyer Micmac reached the other end—Gibraltar on their way home.

They are pulling out of the troubled Mediterranean on schedule, officials said, after several months of exercising with British and American naval units.

Little chance was seen "here that Britain will ask that they stick around. Britain has plenty of naval power of her own in the area. Also, on the balance, she is strong enough to force a compromise."

About 200 prisoners, armed with knives and broken swords, tried to storm the prison commissary but were driven back by rapid firing of the guards in the big grey walls. The prisoners have not eaten since noon.
No casualties were reported.

Warden Orel J. Skeen said the uprising began when the prisoners refused to enter the mess hall for their evening meal.

The Moundsville prison, built to accommodate 900 convicts, has a regular population of about 1,800.

Pakistan Quiet After Slaying

RAWALPINDI, Pakistan, Oct. 16 (Reuters).— Gatherings of more than five persons and the carrying of arms were prohibited in Pakistan today, in the wake of Prime Minister Liaquat Ali Khan's assassination. No disorders had been reported tonight.

The soft-spoken, 56-year-old lawyer who became prime minister of the world's largest Moslem state, was struck in the chest by two bullets as he rose to address an outdoor political meeting. He died soon afterward in hospital.

Horrified spectators turned on the gunman and killed him. The slayer was identified only as "Rafiq," a member of the Khaksars, a fanatical Moslem movement.

As for Pakistan herself, by coincidence two R.C.N. warships neatly symbolized her position during the day.

While British ships opened fire
on Egyptian rioters and looters

ALLABOARD

By G. E. Mortimore

Hunters have turned Central Saanich into a "little Korea," police chief Vernon J. Lawley said.

A Metchosin farmer reported his cow had been felled by a bullet. Walking blithely past "No Hunting" signs, armed men swarmed over his farm and shot it up.

"They're shooting at everything that moves. Last weekend four hunters came in and fired off enough ammunition to stand off a Chinese division."

At Qualicum Beach the fauna have begun to fight back. A deer jumped out of a ditch and knocked over a motorcycle, injuring two persons.

Will these incidents flare into full-scale war? If so, we may soon read communiques like this:

"Red-Hatted forces today launched a savage attack across the width of the Central Tsawach front."

"Heavily outnumbered and fighting a bitter rear-guard action every step of the way, weary United Farmers troops fell back to previously prepared positions."

For several days past United Farmers' reconnaissance units had picked up suspiciously heavy concentrations of enemy troops in the Victoria and Rowanok areas.

The long-awaited fall offensive opened in the early hours of Wednesday morning with the heaviest artillery barrage of the war. Then Red-Hatted armored units thrust fiercely up the West Tsawach road and blasted a hole two miles wide in the Allied defense line.

Through the gap poured masses of infantry who fanned out west and east. Grim-faced defenders exacted a terrible toll of the advancing hordes but casualties were rapidly replaced from the apparently inexhaustible reserve of men the Red-Hats have at their disposal.

After five hours of heavy fighting, Allied units under Major-General Pickles Sidney forced their way out of a Red-Hat trap and fell back on Brentwood Bay.

According to unofficial reports, General Sidney vetoed a high-level suggestion that Allied forces should be strengthened by additional mechanized units.

Allied spokesman hinted at the possibility of an evacuation by sea and a new defense line based upon Mihly Blyth or Dunkirk.

General Ruben McMillan, commander-in-chief of Allied forces, who recently promised his troops that they would be back on the farm by Christmas, admitted he had been taken by surprise.

"Now we are up against a strong and well-trained pheasant army," he said. "This is an entirely new war."

Radio Vjatwoa, the official voice of Red-Hat forces, broadcast a claim that the Allies had used poison gas. The claim was denied by General Bodd, head of the Allied chemical warfare division. Any fumes noticed were those of liquid manure being sprayed on crops, he said.

Meanwhile, Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru repeated the determination of game caught between the rival armies to remain "strictly neutral." He termed the attack by a deer upon two farmers riding a motorcycle "an unfortunate incident."

"Nevertheless," he added, "we stand ready, and we shall not yield to force."

Hatred of Reds Welds Ranks of Blue Legion

HEIDELBERG, Germany, Oct. 16 (Reuters).—The United States army has shown sceptics of the European army idea its own version of a "Freedom Legion." In action during the manoeuvres which ended Oct. 10, about 25,000 German-Poles, Balts and anti-Soviet Russians took part in engineer battalions and as doctors, dentists, drivers, cooks, mechanics, clerks and seafarers, serving with U.S. forces.

Behind the lines, an extra 50,000 Germans supported U.S.

troops in ordnance shops, motor pools, quartermaster supply points and army administrative sections throughout the American zone.

The U.S. army has grouped the 25,000 Germans and refugees from Russia into "labor service companies" or construction battalions whose members wear army uniforms dyed blue and American helmets painted blue. They carry U.S. weapons.

This "Blue Legion," as it is unofficially called, lives in barracks under tight military discipline. Some of them, such as bridge-building teams, wear regulation American uniforms distinguished only by the labor service patch on the shoulder.

The Blue Legion consists of hardened professional soldiers, both from Gen. Vladislav Anders' wartime Polish army and the German Wehrmacht. These homeless and bitter men of half-a-dozen nationalities have at least one thing in common—a hatred of communism.

The government has paid the banks a $1,248,374 instalment on principal due June 30 last and a quarterly interest payment of $86,769 due Sept. 20—both were defaulted—and the banks now have instituted legal proceedings against the company at Hong Kong.

Moslem Leader Struck Down

THE assassination yesterday of Liaquat Ali Khan, veteran leader of the Moslem League and Prime Minister of Pakistan, by a fanatical member of his own faith is another cowardly blow against the peace of the world. Since the partition of India in 1947 and in all of the grave and delicate negotiations which had taken place since to hold Hindu and Moslem peoples in peaceful relationship for the working out of their own independence, this man had been a tower of strength.

Ali Khan, the Hindu sage who was assassinated four years ago by a Hindu fanatic in just the same cowardly manner. The death of Ali Khan's assailant in no way expiates a dastardly crime which has shocked the civilized world. This kindly, educated Oxonian barrister, 56 years of age, was a staunch friend of civilization and of peace, and his death will be an irreparable loss to the world.

Penalizing Municipal Enterprise

THE ruling from Ottawa that Esquimalt municipality must pay federal sales tax on concrete pipe manufactured in its own yards for its own public works may make sense to officials of the national revenue department, but to anyone else it is more likely to appear as a piece of bureaucratic idiocy. Worse than that, what is the use of any local body trying to hold down expenses if the federal government is going to step in and grab the savings?

There are two dangerous principles involved here. The first is that of one government taxing another, which is ridiculous as well as being bad, bringing to mind the old joke about people getting along by taking in one another's washing. The second is the protection this ruling intentionally and openly provides for a manufacturing trade at the expense of taxpayers. Despite the fact that Esquimalt makes pipe not for sale but for its own exclusive use in works for the benefit of the public (including, incidentally, the federal government's own extensive holdings in the municipality), the department rules that this makes the corporation a manufacturer liable to sales tax based on the "fair market value" of the pipe—however that is to be computed.

The department says that if the corporation were excused payment of the tax, that would be "discrimination against independent suppliers." What about discrimination against the municipal taxpayers? The council is not competing with the trade commercially, any more than is a man who builds himself a wheelbarrow in the basement instead of buying one at the hardware store. It is a government's duty to get supplies at the lowest possible cost to the taxpayers. When municipal yards can turn out concrete pipe or anything else at a cost less than the market price, the taxpayers should not be penalized for the protection of the trade concerned.

In this instance the absurdity of the tax is emphasized by the fact that the industry will derive no benefit from the protection it is designed to afford. Esquimalt intends to go on making pipe anyhow, because even with the tax added the homemade article will still cost less than the trade price. But that's about the only consolation the taxpayers will get out of the whole stupid business.

Pay As You Go

THE pay-as-you-go policy which now underwrites the method of income tax collection is not without its anomaly, as the concession made to hard-hill woodworkers well illustrates. Here the broad assumption that because a man earns a given sum in any one week he will earn 52 times that amount during the year breaks down. Many woodworkers have already paid more in income tax than they will be liable for when 1951 ends, and are in effect creditors of the tax department.

This is why it has been wisely decided to relieve them of deductions at source for one or two months as the case may be between now and December 31. The long lay-offs due to bad weather and forest closures have seriously depleted their earnings, and this concession will help to right the balance a bit, more especially if further deductions would mean the collection of a levy that is not due.

For practical purposes the pay-as-you-go method has worked out well, for the government and individuals alike, and there must be few who would prefer the former system of paying in lump sums at the end of the fiscal year. Nevertheless the fact remains that taxpayers are assessed and collected from in advance and all the advantage lies with the revenue department. The short end of the stick is handled by the individual who overpays and must wait the convenience of the department for a refund.

In the abstract, even the principle of being mulled of sums that may never be due is open to question. There is no disposition here to question it in operation, however, since pay-as-you-go is a good workable philosophy, but when the example of income tax collection is followed by hospitals who request payment of co-insurance in advance that is a different kettle of fish altogether, and one to which the public should not be subject.

Keeping Faith With Future

WHETHER one regards a public library as a place to borrow current fiction, or in its deepest sense as the poor man's university, the opening of the fine new addition to the Victoria Public Library today will be a happy achievement for this community. From the Mechanics Institute, pioneer collection of books grew the Andrew Carnegie gift which established Victoria's first public library. Years ago that had outgrown its original shell, ornate and beautiful though that was. Some have criticized the severely plain exterior of the four-story addition, but when they get inside the new building they will understand and appreciate that the gift of the taxpayers has built an up-to-date, progressive institution which will give splendid service for many years.

For members of the Victoria Library staff the opening of the new wing will be as a dream come true, and it is to them and the magnificent service they have rendered this community in the face of every handicap in the past that a good share of the credit will be due. The new library wing was an imperative, urgent need; by building it Victoria is keeping faith with the future no less than with the achievements of the past.

HERE IS A MAN!

Sir: I would like to use your column to express my gratitude to the Victoria city police for a display of courtesy and discretion the like of which I have never encountered before in any Canadian city.

On a visit to Victoria Monday, I had occasion to do a little celebrating and consequently was not fully capable of operating my car safely. The policeman on duty stopped me and politely requested me to leave my car in his care and I was able to get it back the following morning in good condition as I left it.

I would like to thank all the policemen involved for their good judgment and extreme courtesy in temporarily holding my car and treating me with the respect which I perhaps didn't deserve.

C. J. BROWN,
Duncan, B.C.

THESE SPEED LIMITS.

Sir: A few weeks ago I wrote to this paper upholding the proposed minimum speed limit. I read in today's paper of a gentleman being approached by a policeman and was warned that he had broken a non-existent law. I was under the impression, at the last time of my writing, that this proposed law was a minimum of 30 m.p.h. on the highway and 20 m.p.h. on city streets.

What kind of a place are we living in if a person can be reprimanded for breaking a law that doesn't exist? If there's no law, you can't very well break it. In the above mentioned incident the policeman stated that the driver could have been cited for dangerous driving had this law existed.

If you drive over 30 m.p.h. you can be cited for the same thing. I don't think that 30 m.p.h. is logical on city streets, with all the school zones, playgrounds, etc., that you have to contend with.

Sir:—Your headline this morning concerning a proposal of school costs prompts me to make a suggestion for economy.

Let the school boards order that in schools and elsewhere under their jurisdiction room temperatures shall not exceed 65 degrees.

Money is tight, food is short, and health is precious; here is a simple means to conserve all three.

Thinking Aloud

"... of shoes—and ships—and sealing wax—of cabbages and kings."

BY TOM TAYLOR

ALTHOUGH I don't remember a single thing about the occasion, naturally, it is a fact that I came into this world while Queen Victoria, very much older than her Belleville Street statue portrays her, was still on the throne. Victoria, as every schoolboy knows, had had a prince consort; her great-great granddaughter, Elizabeth, when she succeeds her father, will have a prince consort too. And since both Elizabeth and Philip have a decided age advantage over yours truly the chances are my earthly span will end while these two individuals are still holding regal sway.

There is nothing remarkable about such a situation. Elizabeth should she become queen in my time, will be the sixth monarch for whom I shall have sung the national anthem, but millions of other people will be similarly placed. Nor have I ever had, nor ever expect to have, any personal contact with British sovereigns. I just happened the other day to think for a moment about Philip when I realized that he might close out my career, as it were, even though he will be wholly unaware of such a circumstance.

This thought followed the broadcast of his Toronto speech, an event that made plain how different he is from our usual conception of princes. The British people have learned this during the few years since he married Elizabeth, and Canadians are finding it out as the Royal visitors wend their way to Victoria, B.C.

Philip's good fortune is that although a prince he was not brought up like most princes. None of the individuality was ironed out of him because of a serious destiny which lay ahead. He was free of the cloistered atmosphere of court life, and that made an enormous difference. Since he was not then a British prince although living in Britain, he had to make his way at school and in the junior ranks of the Royal Navy much like his fellows. He did not suffer the restrictions that have always surrounded British princes, nor doubt against their will, and so kept them apart from many phases of ordinary life.

The result has been to leave Philip much more informal and more like the people over whom his wife will some day reign. At the Toronto luncheon, for instance, he handled himself as any guest speaker might, and when the chairman pointed out that Philip wrote his own speeches he illuminated the differences being noted about this young man. The context itself betrayed this welcome fact, for the speech lacked the literary gloss but innocuous phrasing commonly composed by palace officials, being more forthright and thereby more interesting. Never before, either, have I heard a jocular aside ad-libbed into a Royal address, a practice which I'm glad to learn is natural to Prince Philip—it makes him more human and nearer to our own level.

The Princess Elizabeth has the difficult role of the Royal tour. She is the main attraction, and she has to combine ease and charm of manner with a degree of majesty that everyone expects from a future queen. This, apparently, she does to perfection, but nevertheless she can scarcely pretend to quite the same extent as Philip, who does not carry the responsibility of being heir to the Throne.

His role is probably not easy either. As the consort of the Princess he ranks second and must perform take that place, at least in public. Yet he obviously is a man of strong individuality and of distinct talent in his own right. Because they were luckier than some of their predecessors and able to marry for love and not by arrangement, they make a good team. I rather fancy that much will be heard from Prince Philip in the years to come and that he will have a marked effect on the British monarchy.

Sunlight as Man's Future Slave

BY THOMAS R. HENRY
Science Editor, North American
Newspaper Alliance

WASHINGTON. The possibility of vastly increasing the earth's food supply, producing natural gas out of water and sunshine, and converting sunshine directly into electricity, amounts to a scientific revolution of unparalleled magnitude which would have effects on human life that hardly can be exaggerated—may come from experiments just reported to the American Association for the Advancement of Science by Drs. Dean Burk and Jerome Cornfield of the U.S. Public Health Service and Martin Schwartz of the University of Wisconsin.

It has been rumored for some months that these men were on the verge of a momentous discovery, equal in significance to the discovery of the fission of uranium in 1939 which led directly to the atomic bomb and to hopes for an "atomic age" which appear to be fading rapidly. A month ago, an authority as eminent as James Bryant Conant, president of Harvard; addressing the American Chemical Society, threw cold water on the likelihood of getting much more out of the atom, and predicted that man's future hinged on better utilization of sunshine. This line of thinking, it can be stressed here, has been shared for some time by some of the most eminent thinkers in American science. They perhaps were partly influenced by reports they had heard of the progress being made by Burk and his associates.

A full preliminary report of the work has just been published in the Scientific Monthly, official journal of the American Association. It is extremely complicated, and is described largely in mathematical terms which cannot readily be translated into ordinary language.

The findings deal with photosynthesis, the cornerstone of all life on earth. It is the process by which plants convert carbon dioxide from the air and water from the soil into carbohydrates—starches, sugars, cellulose, and so forth—which constitute the basic food of all living things. This is accomplished through utilizing the energy of sunshine by means of chlorophyll, the green pigment in leaves.

The process involves the liberation from each molecule of water of one atom of oxygen. This is the chief source of the oxygen in the atmosphere, which also is essential for all higher forms of life.

This process goes on continuously all over the earth where vegetation grows. It never has been completely understood. Previous efforts to follow the process have ended in paradoxes.

It has been estimated that the process, even with the most advanced agricultural practices, is somewhat less than 1 per cent efficient in the utilization of solar energy.

The experiments of Burk and his associates demonstrate that, under certain ideal conditions, at least one step of the process—the release of the oxygen from water, which is basic to everything else—can be made very close to 100 per cent efficient.

The next steps necessarily are up to engineers, chemists, biologists and physicists all over the world. The work here represents at least as great an advance toward complete utilization of solar energy as the original fission of uranium did toward atomic energy. Since there cannot possibly be any significant military application, it is assumed that there will be free publication of the result of the experiments in all countries.

The findings of Burk and his associates resulted from rapid alterations of periods of darkness and intense illumination. Per se, they probably are not of much immediate practical importance. The great significance of the work is that it goes most of the way in solving the riddle of photosynthesis itself. With this knowledge in the possession of scientists, the possibilities are infinite.

Said the authors of the report: The findings regarding the conditions necessary for maximum efficiency at both high and low light intensities present many interesting possibilities for practical application. Engineering methods of food production may be developed to make far more efficient use of solar radiation by utilizing some form of intermittent illumination along lines suggested in this report.

An understanding of the basic mechanism of photosynthesis holds promise not only of increasing food production per unit of light, but of the utilization of solar energy in many other ways. Thus it might be possible to break water down directly into hydrogen gas with sunlight.

Such a process would eliminate mankind's present dependence on exhaustible supplies of natural gas for energy, and would substitute a photochemical process giving hydrogen gas that could be made in any part of the world possessing water and sunlight.

Similarly, now that the reaction is definitely known, investigation of the direct conversion of sunlight to electricity is possible.

The laboratory fission of uranium revealed the possibility of utilizing the binding energy of the atom. Basic understanding of photosynthesis mechanism at the laboratory level may open the possibilities of utilizing another vast and largely unexplored source of energy—sunlight.

It is significant that Conant and the dean of American physicists, Dr. Robert A. Millikan, both have expressed grave doubts as to the value of atomic energy. Both have stressed that, even should it be achieved, it would be too costly to be of much value, but, as Conant stressed, the energy of sunshine is free. Man needs only to know how to use it.

Burk and his associates have gone a long step forward in this direction.

OF GREGORY CLARK

THOSE of us who haven't a good zoo in our home city might take a leaf out of London's book and form a local zoological society on a par with the London Zoological Society. It costs three quid or about $9 per annum to be a fellow of the society, which entitles you to enter the zoo not only free of charge but, on Sundays, for instance, when everybody in London wants to visit the zoo, only fellows and their friends are allowed in until 2:30 p.m.

Not only can you get in. There is a fine society clubhouse, where there is a dining room in which a first-class meal is served at a pleasant price.

Besides zoologists, biologists and people interested in animals and birds from the academic and scholastic angle, the fellows include animal lovers of every kind and degree. The society elects a board and the board not only runs the zoo, collects a large sum of money annually from members, but has the pull to get hold of any possible public grants as well as from wealthy people, and by bequests. The books of the society are always prosperous.

In Canada zoos are usually municipal enterprises and suffer the ups and downs of municipal climates. To make a success of enterprises involving the life of animals, we must always take into account the zealots. All the practical humanity in the world will not balance the zealots when it comes to wild creatures. During the Sunday morning hours at the London Zoo when the fellows of the society and their guests are in the beautiful gardens, it is not sight-seers you discover wandering among the cages, pools and rockeries, but a great gathering of zealous quiet visitors their imprisoned friends and offering a curious, wordless, gestureless affection which must in some measure make up for the weary indignity of being stared at.

WHEN government makes itself responsible for the prices of farm products, it assumes the responsibility for securing prices satisfactory to the farmers, and to the consumers also, if the commodities are sold for domestic consumption.

This is a very difficult task, and one that is bound to make enemies for any government that undertakes it.

The only prices that will be satisfactory to the farmers will have to be higher than the open market offers, and the only prices that will be lower than the open market asks.

But no government can do the impossible. If it departs from open marking to something, "Do you hear that humming noise?" he asked the man ahead of him.

"Can't say I do," the other replied.

Victoria's most melodic and far-sounding welcome to Their Highnesses will begin, and continue for nearly an hour, when seven other bellringers standing tensely in the high tower of Christ Church Cathedral, bellmaster bellringer E. W. Izard in, "Treble bell's going—treble bell's gone."

A quarter peal will be rung—1,260 changes of the bell in a continuous pealing that will take 55 minutes.

Bellringers will be reminded that they are ringing for royalty by the red, white and blue "sallys" on the eight ropes. The sallys are soft grips about three feet long. The ringers pull first on the sally, then on the end of the rope to turn the great bells over and back.

A few visitors will ascend the narrow stairs that circle steeply upwards in the bell tower to the ringing room, a cold, tall room that has a medieval appearance. Some visitors will travel from the southern United States to watch the royal welcome being rung.

The first bell to sound will be the two-ton King George V, number one bell in the tower.

Complete silence will be the rule in the bell ringing chamber,

Winnipeg Shouts Western Welcome

By JOHN LEBLANC

WINNIPEG, Oct. 16 (CP)—Westerners whopped it up for their Royal visitors today in a high, wide and handsome welcome.

From the wheat fields and truck farms of the flat prairies and from the homes of their sons and daughters, they rose to a boisterous reception that ran like wildfire along 17 crowded miles of Winnipeg's streets.

It was a western style, boisterous display that thawed the knitting chill of a biting north wind sweeping through more than 200,000 persons massed through the city for Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip.

The crowds not only roared. They smashed through police lines time and again. They leaped alongside the Royal car, inciting whoops. Hugging each other in a tangle of cheering humanity. The parade had to stop time and again while swarming police cleared new paths.

While the demonstration lacked the numbers of Toronto's half-million last Saturday, it was perhaps the most ear-shattering and uproarious of the Canadian tour to date, giving the Prince and Princess a taste of what the west can turn up in the way of hospitality for visiting Royal visitors.

For in this gateway to the west, it was the crowd's introduction to a 12-day swing through the prairies and British Columbia, where some of the heartiness of the frontier days still carries on to the present.

The Prince and Princess, who flew here this morning from Kapuskasing, Ont., after their swing through Ontario, began to make by early special train to Regina. They will spend a day there and in other parts of western Canada before flying to a four-day visit to Calgary and the new country.

Here, except when the crowd was taking them near, they went through another round of formal functions. There was a provincial reception held in the city hall of Winnipeg and Hotel de Ville of nearby French-speaking St. Boniface, and a reception in the Parliament buildings.

But perhaps they found most interest in an afternoon visit to WINNIPEG, Oct. 16 (CP)—she accepted the flowers from the Prince Philip drew a laugh from the guests and the gallery at Manitoba's legislative chamber today.

After signing the visitors' book, the Prince apparently was going to pocket the fountain pens until Premier Douglas Campbell had been put up to guard him and his mother.

With a wide grin, Prince Philip handed the pen back to owner Mr. Campbell.

Margaret Elizabeth McDermid, 81-year-old daughter of Lieutenant Governor Sir James McDermid, made Princess Elizabeth take an extra dip as the tiny miss presented a bouquet of orchids at the legislative chamber.

As the Princess bent forward to receive the flowers, Margaret made a second graceful curtsy. The Princess was forced to follow suit and was well bent over when the Princess Elizabeth and her husband had stood for more than a half hour as more than 200 legislature members, other provincial dignitaries and their wives paraded past to shake hands with the royal couple at the legislature.

Told to be seated at least a half hour before their Royal Highnesses arrived for a scheduled 12:45 p.m. C.S.T. luncheon at the Royal Alexandra Hotel, about 400 guests fidgeted through an extra hour due to the late arrival of the couple.

"For the royal couple were whisked around the semi-circular hospital driveway and on as one veteran put it bitterly, 'to see more of those politicians.'

Patients of Veterans' Hospital Bitter As Royal Couple's Car Whisked Past

WINNIPEG, Oct. 16 (CP)—The car bearing Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh into Winnipeg today did not stop at Deer Lodge Veterans' Hospital and the Winnipeg Tribune says "there are many loyal but disappointed hearts" as a result.

Hundreds of veterans had lined the grounds and crowded against the hospital windows, some of them prone on stretchers, to get a glimpse of the royal couple, the paper says in a news-page story.

"It was announced in advance that the stop was unlikely at the hospital. During the visit of the King and Queen in 1939 a stop was scheduled at Deer Lodge and was missed. On the return trip, the King and Queen spent half an hour with veterans who were taken to the railway station."

In a newspaper story yesterday, the Tribune said readers in letters had parked at a window on the first floor of the hospital more than half an hour earlier.

"There were tears in his eyes as he moved away and he exclaimed, 'I guess they haven't got time for guys like us, those politicians are monopolizing them. We're the guys who should be getting the breaks, not them.'

The newspaper says the veterans was speaking for 90 percent of his comrades.

NEW HOME FACIAL

LOOK LOVELIER IN 10 DAYS ... or your money back!

Read about the 4 Simple Steps developed by a specialist

No need for a lot of elaborate preparations ... no complicated rituals! With just one dainty know-how you can make your skin look so much lovelier!

The way to use it is as easy as washing your face. It's the Home Facial described at right. De-

See how it can help you!

With this Home Facial, you "creamwash" glowing cleanliness without any dry, drawn feeling afterwards. You give skin the all-day protection of a greaseless, natural-looking powder base—the all-natural, added-a-mulse, and cream that helps heal

Follow this easy Home Facial as an aid to a lovelier-looking complexion!

Morning: Creamwash skin. With a damp cloth, creamwash as you would wash your face. No dry, drawn feeling afterwards.

Evening: Creamwash again. How clean your skin looks without harsh-treating. How fresh it feels!

Rangers Join Mounties In Search at Nanaimo

Three South Vancouver Island Rangers and a bloodhound were rushed to the scene of an R.C.M.P. search party near Nanaimo yesterday afternoon.

They were called to aid two R.C.M.P. constables and bloodhounds scouring the No. 2 Indian Reserve in search of Harry Edward Vater, missing since Saturday when he left his home with a gun, but not wearing hunting gear.

His car was found Sunday near the city dump.

Chief Ranger Gordon Sword of Victoria said yesterday that after the call for help was sent out by the R.C.M.P., the Rangers reached the area in a matter of hours.

Rangers rushed from Victoria were Eric Fredin, Franey Morse and doghandler Reay Meldrum.

District R.C.M.P. Constable George Brassard said that on a number of occasions bloodhounds appeared to have picked up a scent, but heavy dews and rain had washed away the tracks.

Areas near the Nanaimo River have been carefully searched.

Police are "satisfied" that another missing man, Steve Walkowski, missing in the Black Jack area, is alive and well.

He has been seen and spoken to and traces have been discovered of places he has been.

Search parties will keep a watch on roads where it is expected he will turn up sooner or later.

NOTICE TO CREDITORS

In the "Matters of the Estate of Minnie Wade, Late of the Municipality of Saanich, B.C., before the 30th day of November, 1951, after which date the Executrix will distribute the assets available among the persons entitled thereto, having regard only to the claims of which they then have notice."

HERBERT L. BAILEY and HARRY JAMES DAVIS, Executors of the Estate of Minnie Wade.

CANADIAN NATIONAL RAILWAYS - WESTERN REGION

Sealed tenders will be invited at the office of the Chief Engineer, Winnipeg, Manitoba, until 2 o'clock Central Standard time in the afternoon of Tuesday, November 19, 1951, for the construction of a new department building at Port Mann, B.C.

Plans, specifications and form of contract will be available at the office of the Chief Engineer, Winnipeg, District Engineer, Victoria, B.C. Tenders will not be considered unless made in form supplied by the Railways and accompanied by a deposit cheque drawn on a Canadian bank in Canada in favor of Canadian National Railways, equal to 5 per cent of the total amount of the tender.

No bid bonds will be accepted with tenders for this work.

The lowest bid, if any tender not received, will be accepted.

J. R. McMillan, Vice-President, Winnipeg, Manitoba, October 17, 1951.

Daily Astrology

By RITA DEL MAR

WEDNESDAY, OCT. 17, 1951

Today's quotation: "There are few difficulties that hold out against real attacks; they fly like the visible horizon, before those who advance." — Sharpe.

Wednesday for everyone: Flyish things instead of starting anew. Be willing to turn aside from your own affairs to attend to impersonal matters. Make progress generally in the evening.

Look for your birthday and birthday below:

March 21 to April 19 (Aries)—Take decisive action to amend personal shortcomings.

May 21 to June 20 (Gemini)—

Maintain Harmony during the daytime. Make good on the social front, and through medium of pals in the evening.

June 21 to July 22 (Cancer)—Rule out misconceptions on your part and that of others; transform hostility into good will.

July 23 to Aug. 22 (Leo)—Don't come to grips with members of household or others prior to midafternoon. Be a good mixer later.

Aug. 23 to Sept. 22 (Virgo)—Do some figuring and stirring about concerning ambitions, prestige, higher-ups, in evening.

Sept. 23 to Oct. 22 (Libra)—Busy yourself with routine mail, tasks, to midafternoon. Later: work out trips, plans. Have a gay evening.

Oct. 23 to Nov. 21 (Scorpio)—Mark time in matter requiring unusual effort. Register achievement after midafternoon.

Nov. 22 to Dec. 21 (Sagittarius)

Avoid pressing others for definite answers. Shape your program for fun, recreation in evening.

Dec. 22 to Jan. 19 (Capricorn)—Care for routine tasks; be diligent, until evening; after which score positive accomplishments.

Jan. 20 to Feb. 18 (Aquarius)

Don't place too much confidence in the good judgment of others today. Extend a "glad hand" in the evening; deepen ties.

Culbertson on Bridge

Copyright 1951 by Eli Culbertson

A declarer is not to be envied when he is up against the sort of problem South had in today's was sure to lose two diamond deal—but it helps a lot to have tricks; he might also lose to the certain type of player as an spade king and the heart king. Should he take the spade finesse or the heart finesse? There was no way of knowing which king, if either, was on side.

After some reflection South put up dummy's club ace and bid the spade queen. West jumped on the trick with his king, and after that, South had no problem using the spade queen in dummy, he naturally led the heart jack through East, and the latter's bid was trapped.

It would have been a different story, perhaps, if West had unhesitatingly let the spade queen win the trick. It is true that South might have sensed the true situation and shifted to hearts, but how could he tell? Certainly, it would be tempting for him to go ahead with the second spade finesse, and if he chose that course he would immediately come to grief.

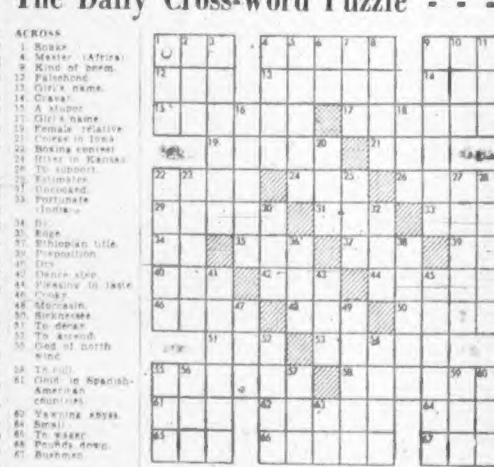

It was not too difficult for West to visualize South's dilemma and to tell him into a false sense of security in the spade suit.

West opened the club queen.

North might well have bid three no-trump on his 4-3-3 distribution instead of giving the secondary heart raise, but as it happened, the four heart contract turned out satisfactorily.

West opened the club queen.

Uncle Wiggily Story

By Howard Garla

MR. CHUCK'S TRICK

As soon as Uncle Wiggily had raised his hat on a stick out of Mr. Chuck's burrow hole in the woods, the three foxes began throwing stones at him. Clarence, the boy fox, had shouted that Uncle Wiggily was trying to get out of the hole where he and the ground hog gentleman were prisoners of the foxes.

"Bang! Clatter! Clap!"

The stones which Mr. Fox, Mrs. Fox and Clarence Fox threw, hit Uncle Wiggily's hat on the end of a stick which the rabbit gentleman had raised up out of the burrow hole where he and Mr. Chuck were hiding.

"You see what happened, didn't you, Wiggily?" asked the ground hog.

"Well, I didn't exactly see it, but I heard the stones bang on my tall silk hat," answered Mr. Longears.

"The stones would have banged on your head, Wiggily, instead of your hat, if you had put your head out of the hole," said Mr. Longears.

"Better holes and dents in your head than in your head," said the woodchuck.

"What are we going to do next, Chuckie?" asked Mr. Longears.

"I would like to get out of this hide-away hole and take my potato to my hole myself, Wiggily," said Mr. Chuck.

"I'll come out to get some dinner for supper. My wife and my boys, Woodie and Waddie, will be wondering where I am. sneak up behind me and bite me through this hole and go home."

"Then why don't you?" asked Uncle Wiggily. "I know, groundhogs always have a back door and a front door to your underground houses. So if we can't get out of this front door, why can't we slip out of the back door, Chuckie, old chap?"

"Because there isn't any back door," answered Mr. Chuck.

"Last spring I started to make a new burrow here. I dug the front door and made a small burrow or tunnel leading from it. Later I intended to make a long tunnel, a sort of living-room chamber and a back door. But before I could finish, I went on my summer vacation. This burrow has never been finished. This front door is all there is to it. So we can't get out unless we take a chance at being nipped by the foxes."

"I am afraid of a fox, but you are not, are you, Chuckie?"

"I will soon show you," replied Mr. Chuck.</

Reconstruction Minister R. H. Winters has told the House of Commons in Ottawa that the federal government has lived up to its obligations in the housing field. His statement was immediately challenged by a C.C.F. member.

In the four years from 1947 to 1951, said Mr. Winters, 344,000 units were completed in Canada, and another 85,000 likely would be completed this year.

International Items

At Flushing Meadow, U.S. Kashmir mediator Frank P. Graham called yesterday for immediate Security Council action to improve relations between India and Pakistan through the banning of all war-like propaganda. His report was received hours after the assassination of Pakistan's Prime Minister Liaquat Ali Khan.

Prime Minister Shigeru Yoshida of Japan has bluntly advised the Diet (parliament) in Tokyo that efforts by Japan to seek a peace treaty with Soviet Russia were tantamount to "looking for fish by climbing a tree."

In Hartford, Conn., Governor Thomas E. Dewey of New York said left-wingers and "sincere bunglers" in U.S. information services have helped Russia give the U.S. a "terrible beating" on the world propaganda front. A new program, he said, must be set up to defeat the Russians in the death-struggle of ideas.

In Paris, French vice-premier Georges Bidault, in charge of France's defense program, has refused to agree to the use of German divisions as such in the projected West European army. His country, he said, wanted German troops used only in smaller units.

On the Labor Front

Lumber operators of northern and southern interior B.C. says a Vancouver dispatch, have rejected a Conciliation Board wage recommendation for woodworkers. Rejection, said a spokesman, was prompted by recommendation for compulsory check-off of union dues. I.W.A. members in the interior will now take a strike vote.

An INS dispatch from New York quotes Radio Free Europe listeners in both Hungary and Poland as reporting that the Communist rulers now are forcing factory workers to spend their Sunday working in the fields for the harvest.

From Montreal comes word that the National Seamen's Association, refused affiliation by the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees and Other Transport Workers (C.C.L.) at its recent convention, has announced that it is joining forces with the United Workers of America (C.I.O.).

Ottawa's Bureau of Statistics reports that, although employment was higher, the average weekly industrial wage declined slightly on Aug. 1 from July 1. Per capita weekly earnings on the later date were $50.14, down three cents.

People in the News

At Lausanne, Switzerland, Charles Davis, 23-year-old American who told a Swiss court he had been hired by Senator Joseph McCarthy (R-Wis.) to spy on U.S. diplomats, has been found guilty and sentenced to eight months' imprisonment.

Into Amsterdam yesterday flew U.S. Congressman Peter E. Mack of Illinois, who is piloting a small airplane on a goodwill flight around the world. Mack flew to Amsterdam from Madrid.

Out of Vancouver on another flight went Most Rev. Maurice Roy, Archbishop of Quebec and Bishop of the Armed Forces, who is bound for Korea and the Far East. With him went the senior Roman Catholic chaplain of the services.

Movie agent Sid Luft in Hollywood has been sued for $10,000 damages, in the aftermath to a traffic accident argument two weeks ago which developed into a four-way bout of fistfights.

From Here and There

In Washington, U.S. Federal Judge F. Dickinson Letts has denied motions to dismiss the $5,100,000 damage suit columnist Drew Pearson has brought against Senator Joseph McCarthy and eight others. Pearson has charged that the nine defendants entered into a conspiracy to have newspapers and radio boycott him.

Federal Subsidy to Milk Producers Only Way Out, City Council Agrees

City council yesterday endorsed a Moose Jaw, Sask., resolution calling for a federal subsidy to milk producers.

Mayor Percy George told council he became convinced the problem of rising milk prices was a federal, rather than provincial responsibility, while stumping Esquimalt riding during the recent by-election campaign.

He said the sale of dairy herds by hard-pressed farmers may lead eventually to soil erosion, which mentioned the recent million-dollar subsidy to Okanagan Valley fruit growers, hard hit by winter losses.

The only answer I can see is federal support for dairy farmers," he said.

Aldermen Aubrey Kent and Frank Mulliner, although they said they were opposed to subsidies, said they could see no other way out.

Al. Waldo Skillings declared the whole economy of Canada is built on non-subsidies. He said protective tariffs are subsidies for Canadian manufacturers, and he thought Ottawa should deal with.
